

About the McKinley Foundation Health Care Consortium

Members of the McKinley Foundation Health Care Consortium represent qualified nonprofit organizations that have decided to take the important step to be both fiscally responsible as well as to maintain a dedicated workforce. The Consortium was formed in order to offer a full range of benefits to provide cost savings, educational resources, financial benefits, and the kind of support that helps organizations prosper on a long-term basis.

One benefit of the Consortium is the member's access to DependentPlus™, an innovative employee health care benefits program offered through Coventry Health Care. Designed to save money and retain employees, this program offers innovative plan designs that lower monthly premiums and reduce employee out-of-pocket expenses.

Recognizing how challenging it is for many nonprofits to retain employees, the Consortium's plan offers a dependent-only program with significant savings on premiums for employees with dependents. DependentPlus™ is available to select employee groups. Existing McKinley Financial Services' nonprofit clients and invited nonprofits that select other health care insurance carriers are also eligible for membership in this unique Consortium.

Benefits for Your Organization

Like all businesses, nonprofits must reduce expenses whenever and wherever possible in order to increase funding toward their missions. While maximizing health care dollars is the primary goal of the Consortium, many other benefits are included as well:

- Significant savings on Coventry Health Care premiums
- Education programs through the McKinley Academy for Nonprofits
- Donations from the McKinley Financial Foundation
- Improved employee satisfaction and retention
- Coverage for children of employees
- Wellness benefits at no extra charge

The McKinley Academy for Nonprofits

Available to all McKinley Foundation Health Care Consortium members, the Academy is an education benefit and a resource for nonprofit executives who strive to maximize every dollar. Executive staff and other employees may participate in ongoing seminars, workshops, and presentations on operational topics of concern to nonprofits.

Representatives of educational organizations that serve the nonprofit industry as well as experts in specific fields will present events on topics that are timely and useful such as:

- Structuring and maintaining budgets in a down economy
- Employee retention
- Timely insurance issues effecting nonprofits

Custom workshops can be arranged by request from Consortium members.
